Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from The Reason Why: A Common Sense Contribution to Christian and Catholic Apologetics It would seem rather late in the day to put forth an Apology of the Christian Religion. For that religion has stood before the world nearly two thousand years, and it has made good its contention of having been divinely established. The historic credentials of its institution by Jesus Christ, God's own Son, are absolutely without flaw. Its divine origin and purpose are, moreover, clearly demonstrated by the moral regeneration which it has wrought during every century of its existence. It is, therefore, a religion that is obviously true, and as such there appears little need of defending its claims. Still more uncalled for would it seem to say anything in defense of religion in general, abstracting from its natural or supernatural character. For the need of some kind of religion is so deeply engraven on the human heart, that the common voice of humanity has ever proclaimed it as an incontrovertible fact.
