XII of the Report and also on page 250. West of the main Rocky Mountain range the rule of flight appears to be from the higher plains and plateaus, where the insect normally breeds, to the lower and more fertile valleys; and the greater irregularity of the prevailing winds an I more broken nature of the country preclude the same regularity in directions of flight that, on the whole, prevails east of the range. Time of Appearance of invading Swarms. --In endeavoring to deduce general conclusions respecting the time of year that the 1S74 swarms reached different parts of the country, great difficulty was experienced in sifting those accounts which referred to the progeny of the 1873 invasion, and those which hatched within the insects native range, and came from the extreme Northwest. The same was true of the fresh 187G swarms, and those which hatched in Minnesota. As...
