Known as the Little Train That Could or The Last Interurban , the Chicago, South Shore, and South Bend Railroad has served the Northwest Indiana/Chicago area as a major commercial and recreational transportation link for 90 years. For its first two decades, it survived good times and bad until its landmark purchase by Samuel Insull s Midland Utilities in 1925. Insull launched an aggressive marketing campaign producing booklets, movies, and in particular a set of colorful, artistic posters, which attracted many from Illinois to Northwest Indiana s steel mills and sand dunes. Moonlight in Duneland tells the story of that poster campaign through the reproduction of more than forty known surviving posters. Additional advertising items from the 1920s and 1970s are sprinkled throughout the book, along with original art by Dale Fleming and Mitchell A. Markovitz. In addition, four essays describe the background of Insull s marketing genius and its artists. William D. Middleton s essay details Insull s purchase of the South Shore Line and its rebirth.
